TEACHING PRACTICE MODEL

Teaching practice, or school-based work-integrated learning, is an integral part of teacher education that provides you with the opportunity to experience the excitement and thrill of a classroom environment while you study. Teaching practice is compulsory at Embury and includes preparation for teaching, the opportunity to practice teaching skills (such as lesson presentations) and periods of structured teaching, learning and assessment in a school under the supervision of a mentor teacher. Various teaching practice assessment methods are used during this time to evaluate you, including reports from the school, Embury mentor and school mentor.

Embury assumes the responsibility for the placement of students at appropriate schools.

Please note the following:

- You will have to spend a total of 6 weeks in a school under the supervision of a mentor teacher as part of your studies. You have to do teaching practice in Semester 2 (after the May/June exams).
- If you are already employed at a school or pre-school, your school or pre-school must meet Embury's minimum requirements for a functional school and your mentor teacher must be suitably qualified. If your school or pre-school does not meet our minimum requirements or you don't have a suitably qualified teacher in your school who can act as a mentor teacher, you will have to spend your teaching practice weeks in another school or pre-school.

You will receive full details of how your teaching practice sessions will work during the course of your studies.

RULES OF PROGRESSION

All modules are compulsory. You must pass all of the stipulated modules in order to be awarded the Higher Certificate in Pre-School Education. The minimum pass mark for each module is 50%.

ASSESSMENTS

All Embury modules have a clearly defined assessment strategy, assessment weighting per mode of delivery and include both formative and summative assessment tasks. Formative assessment tasks take place to provide feedback to students and lecturers during the teaching and learning process. Formative assessment tasks do not contribute towards the final module assessment mark. You will find formative assessments in your study guide, which include various activities and self-assessment exercises.

Summative assessment tasks take place at the end of a period of learning and measure student achievement. The summative marks contribute towards the final module assessment mark.

Continuous assessment (CASS) refers to summative assessment tasks completed during the module to assess student achievement. For this qualification, your summative marks will be made up mostly of online tests and assignments that you have to submit to Embury for marking. Your CASS mark is used to calculate your Duly Performed (DP) mark, which is the mark that allows you access to an examination.

Certain Embury modules may have CASS tasks plus an examination at the end of the module, while other modules have only CASS tasks to assess student achievement, i.e. there is no examination at the end of the module. Examinations are offered twice a year: in May/June at the end of Semester 1, and in October/November at the end of Semester 2.

Although we have two examination sessions a year, you cannot choose which examination session you want to write: your examination sessions are linked to the semester that a module is offered in. For example, you have to write the exam of a Semester 1 module in May/June and the exam of a Semester 2 or year module in October/November.
